

Volterra, a window over the future!

Let's save the walls of Volterra

It's been twenty years since we started to spread the name of Volterra around the world, and we are pleased our city is so esteemed and loved.

Volterra and its medieval walls don't belong to its inhabitants only, but they are a world heritage site that must be returned both to us, as citizens, and to the world.

One of the most charming places of the town with breathtaking sunsets over the Cecina Valley and the Tyrrhenian sea, enlivened by workshops, artists and town dwellers.

Our special support goes to the people who lived in the cleared out buildings to whom we are sure the city will be able to give its solidarity and aid.

This morning one of them left a message of hope that, we think, must be shared by all of us with optimism: "This disaster must not only be considered a wound on the past, but it must be turned into a Window over the Future".

*Aid Volterra, by supporting the Municipal administration, to heal the wound that has deeply touched the heart and the soul of Volterra, as soon as possible.

LA CITTA' NAVE

Per arrivare a Volterra occorrono mille miglia di querce, sassi e tramontana, intere frontiere di lupi e cinghiali, giorni lunghi siderali e spazi immensi e aspri, uomini arcigni e solitari, terre d'argilla assolate, inospitali, pietre durissime da scolpire, mura chiuse e feritoie e una pena sottile, che assale...

Eppure guarda - lo diresti? - qui intorno è tutto mare...

e la città diventa una nave, protesa nel cielo, inaffondabile
